Stimulus rebates funds remaining after the exempted two months

For example, if a household receives the stimulus rebate in April of 2020, the rebate must not be counted as income or as a resource for April 2020 and must be exempt as a countable resource for May and June of 2020. If the household has any remaining funds from the stimulus payment starting in July 2020, the remaining amount must be counted as a non-exempt resource from July 2020 and going forward.

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)

Stimulus rebate payments received under the CARES Act are not to be counted as income. They are to be excluded as a non-recurring, lump sum payment under federal regulation.

New SNAP applications

When processing a new application for SNAP, staff should exclude any stimulus rebate payments from being counted as a resource in the month received and the month after it is received. Any stimulus rebate balance remaining after that must be counted as a resource.

Households already receiving SNAP

For households already receiving SNAP when they receive the stimulus rebate payment, staff must exclude the payment as a resource for twelve (12) months after the household receives the money. Any amount of stimulus payment remaining after the 12-month period must be counted as a resource thereafter.

Change reporters and resource test

For the few SNAP households who are subject to a resource test because they are not categorically eligible for SNAP, the resource test will be applied at application and recertification. Only households subject to change reporting (not simplified reporting) and the resource test are required to report when their resources exceed the household limit.

Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP)

Stimulus rebate payments received under the CARES Act will be excluded as countable income for HEAP eligibility and benefit determinations and must not be counted in the HEAP budget.

The payments must be excluded when determining eligibility for Regular HEAP, Emergency HEAP, Heating Equipment Repair and Replacement (HERR), Heating Equipment Clean and Tune (C&T), and Cooling Assistance benefits. Any remaining stimulus rebate payment balance remaining are not to be considered a liquid resource for Emergency HEAP and HERR benefit components.
